

THE FALCON
MANSFIELD STATE COLLEGE
MANSFIELD, PENNSYLVANIA 16933

The Falcon is a new "little magazine" publishing the work of current American poets and fiction writers. We thought you would like to look over a copy. We have a circulation of about 1500, including writers, New York and little magazine editors, libraries, bookstores, and academic people from all over the country.

The second issue (January 1971) will include poems by John Ciardi and Lewis Turco and fiction by Curt Johnson as well as work from new or previously unknown writers.

One continuing feature is a series of interviews with contemporary writers: Robert Boles in the first issue, Ronald Sukenick (Up, The Death Of The Novel And Other Stories) in the second.

We would greatly appreciate any interest you might develop in The Falcon.
